DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of Group I in the reply filed on 01/22/2007 is acknowledged.

Claims 4-8 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected groups, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 01/22/2007.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jazzar (7121061) in view of Reay (5671582).

Regarding claim 1: Jazzar a modular building system comprising:

- (a) multiple modules (16 or 17), wherein each of said multiple modules comprise:
  - (i) structural steel mesh (28) comprising a backbone and two fins (while not expressly disclosed it is common and notoriously well known to include reinforcing mesh in the body of the panel);
  - (ii) cementitious mortar encasing said backbone and said two fins of said structural steel mesh and yielding six sides and eight edges of said module (figures 2 or 9); and

Jazzar does not expressly disclose indentations in said six sides and said eight edges of said cementitious mortar, exposing portions of said structural steel mesh or metal plate connectors, but instead discloses that the reinforcing is exposed for connection to an adjacent module.

Reay discloses cementitious panels having indentations (6) exposing portions of said structural steel mesh and metal plate connectors (30) which are welded to said exposed portions of said structural steel mesh thereby connecting adjacent modules (Col. 3, lines 6-14).

Because both references disclose designs and methods for connecting adjacent pre-cast panels with reinforcing it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to substitute design and method disclosed by Jazzar for another, such as the one disclosed by Reay, because the substitution of one know element or method for another would have yielded the predictable results of securely connecting adjacent pre-cast panels with reinforcing.

Regarding claim 2: Jazzar in view of Reay disclose the modular building system of claim 1 above, but does not expressly disclose the dimensions of the backbone and fins. However, applicant has not disclosed that the claimed dimensions are for provide an advantage or solve a stated problem. Furthermore it appears that the fins of Jazzar and applicants claimed fins would perform the same function of strengthening the module and providing secure connection means equally well. Further it is noted that the modules of Jazzar and applicant's claimed invention are for the purposes of building structures, and therefore would be subject to size limitations and requirements based on the design and function of the building, and that these limitations would vary depending upon the loads subjected to the modules. Therefore it appears to be a mere matter of design choice that would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the fins of Jazzar to have the claimed dimensions.

Regarding claim 3: Jazzar in view of Reay disclose the modular building system of claim 1 above, but does not expressly disclose epoxy resin on said edges of said module in contact with an adjacent module. However, Jazzar does disclose adding concrete between adjacent modules for connecting (Col. 3, lines 42-46). Further applicant discloses in the specification, paragraph 0044, that one of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that other bonding materials may be used. Based upon the level of common sense and ordinary skill in the art and applicants own disclosure it appears that it would have been obvious to substitute epoxy resin for concrete to achieve the predictable results of securely connecting adjacent modules.
